Try to imagine

our world without the Red Cross

THINK what Red Cross packages from home mean to lonely prisoners-of-war. Think what the comforting socks, knitted by the Red Cross women volunteers, mean to our soldiers over there in the mud of battle. Think what blood serum means to the wounded. Think what Red Cross food and medical help mean to sick and hungry children in liberated lands. Think . . . and your own mental picture of what this war-torn world would be without the Red Cross will make you want to GIVE . . . and give as MUCH as you can.

Another policy-holder reports...

"I AM a policyholder in The Mutual Life of Canada, an average man with the average man's problems. I know what people mean when they talk of stretching the dollars to meet all the needs. That is the reason why I decided to insure in the first place. I knew that it was unfair for me to go on making plans for the future with my family and doing nothing to guarantee their fulfilment if I should not be here. It was then that I realized that the only practical solution was life insurance.

"I DISCUSSED my needs with a Mutual Life representative and as a result I purchased Ordinary Life insurance.

"THE AMOUNT I pay remains the same each year. I share in the Company's earnings and my protection remains in force as long as I live. But I also have the option of using the cash value of the policy to provide a retirement income at any time I choose . . . It gives me a great sense of security to know that I own this insurance with its constantly increasing values."

EVIDENCE OF the satisfaction of Mutual Life policyholders is furnished by the fact that whole families and succeeding generations have entrusted their life insurance programs exclusively to The Mutual Life, and each year approximately 35% of its new business comes from policyholders.

Let a Mutual Life representative help you select a policy adapted to your particular circumstances.

Commentaries

By Dr. Harry J. Stern, Rabbi

"5706 — Ushering In The Post-War World"

It can be said that Rosh Hashonah 5706 marks a turning point in human history, for its observance occurs but only three months after joyous "V-E Day" and amidst the continued rejoicing of "V-J Day". How the world has changed, profoundly and magnificently for the better in one year! Thank God for the complete victory for the forces of freedom. Thank God for victory and peace.

Not in twelve years with Nazism and organized evil in the saddle could the Jew joyfully celebrate a New Year as he so eagerly welcomes 5706. What charm and deep meaning has therefore this Rosh Hashonah for Israel! Israel, who has borne witness to God and to the inexorable working of the moral law, has again come to see the destroyers being destroyed. Never has there been so poignant a demonstration of the justice of God, that they who first raised the sword against the Jewish people were themselves annihilated by the sword.

And we have come to see that when the Jew is persecuted the world dare not be indifferent! For what has our generation beheld? Those mighty nations, the democracies who stood by for a time and did nothing to halt the murderers who were determined to destroy the Jew, these very nations paid a terrible price in blood and tears.

But on this Rosh Hashonah, Israel, broken in body but not in spirit, gathers its remnants and without fear joins delivered mankind in facing hopefully the future.

How fitting is it to reflect upon the utterance of the great Isaiah as we enter into the post-war era. In an hour such as this when he beheld a world in ruins as a result of war, he visioned a time when "God will swallow up death in victory, and the Lord God will wipe away tears from all faces; and the rebuke of His people shall be taken away from off all the earth." (Isaiah 25:8)

It is interesting to observe that in a most recent authoritative book on "Jews In The Post-War World" (Gottschalk and Duker) the authors have wisely printed this text from sacred scripture as an introduction to their study.

"Bila Hamovis Lonetzach", "God will destroy death forever." What do we understand by this startling statement? The commentators explain that phrase as referring not to the individual biological fact of death but rather to the banishment of wholesale death practiced by the nations. The prophet foresees a day when the world will be wordless. Is not this the deepest longing of all mankind today? The past six years of tears, agony, blood and death should have taught us the ways of peace. It must not happen again! War is an outworn institution. It must be outlawed.

Another war with the use of the atomic bomb will mean the end of civilization! The atomic bomb is the most frightful of human inventions since the beginning of Time. Urban civilization might be wholly wiped out, and, such population as survives at all, reduced to the animal level of many thousands of years ago. All the more reason in the face of this horror that we must dream of a nobler future for mankind. The knowledge gained through this latest discovery must be used for the advancement of life, not for tyranny, not for death. What dazzling gifts the science which split the atom can offer to the heavily laden everywhere, to the toiling, struggling masses throughout the world.

Indeed, there must never again be war. This is mankind's high resolve and this is the meaning of the San Francisco Charter. Of course, this charter is but a beginning toward the road to perpetual peace. But at San Francisco, despite ancient difficulties which had prevented world co-operation, the world has found the will and the way to build a machinery for permanent international co-operation. The machine is new. It will creak and stop and occasionally break down. But the new machine can be improved. Let us not be perfectionists at this time and give emphasis to the weaknesses of the San Francisco Charter. And let us not by cynical and claim that war can not be removed from the earth. But let us work individually and collectively for a world governed by law and order. Perpetual peace is now our only salvation! And we must be prepared to sacrifice and pay the price for perpetual peace.

But we know perpetual peace will never come into the world unless men and nations live in accordance with God's moral law. Germany was doomed when it broke the laws of decency in its murderous assault upon Israel. Italy was doomed when it set out upon the conquest of weak Ethiopia. Japan was doomed in its onslaught upon the helpless Chinese. The nations were doomed when they looked on indifferently and gave the flimsy excuse of non-interference because of the sovereignty rights of nations. The moral law caught up with all, and what a nightmare humanity has experienced in the pouring out of human blood and treasure.

As we enter 5706 our longing is for the fulfilment of the prophetic utterance, "God will destroy mass murder, war forever!" Mankind is making a splendid effort in this direction. We know that this vision can be converted into reality when nations learn that the best guarantee for human happiness and peace lies in the obedience of God's moral law: in international morality. The thoughtful and hopeful in this hour will wish to recall the lines of the immortal Tennyson:

"For I dipped into the future, far as human eye could see Saw the vision of the world, and all the wonder that would be;
Saw the Heavens fill with commerce, argosies and magic sails,
Pilots of the purple twilight, dropping down with costly bales;
Heard the Heavens fill with shouting and there rained a ghastly dew,
From the nation's airy navies grappling in the central blue;
Far along the world-wide whisper of the South Wind rushing warm,
With the standards of the peoples, plunging through the thunder storm,
Till the war-drum throbbed no longer and the battle flags were furled

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancor
That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an anchor."

The Jewish holy days are always for the children. Who else? This New Year the haunting thought is of Europe's Jewish children who were inscribed in the Book of Life. One hundred and fifty thousand or more were dragged back by the hand of God from the path of the cutting wind and that's about all there are. The Jewish theme this year wherever their people are safe and happy as they are in Canada will be whatever concerns the treasuring and the fostering of these children who eluded the scourge. Stories of death and disaster circle about them but they are the living and it is with the living that their people must be concerned now. Now and for a long time to come.

Thousands of children were killed or deported, so, naturally, there are thousands of stories and some day there will be volumes containing detailed accounts of how they were taken; from whose arms they were wrenched; how they were nearly free when this or that happened; in which district they were trapped; by whose inventive savagery they were tracked down; and where people tried to save them but failed.

S. J. Goldsmith, who is a member of the staff of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency in London, England, tells of how he found his very own boyhood friends from Kovno, Lithuania, among the sights that made his blood run cold at the Dachau concentration camp. A sad and frightened boy of fourteen turned out to be the son of a friend of Goldsmith who used to have a dry cleaning business on the main street. This same boy was a baby then and they called him Moishele. What happened? The boy wept bitterly. His parents were killed. He saw them die.

Goldsmith was surrounded by Lithuanian Jews from Kovno and Kybartai. Would he take greetings to their friends and relatives in America, South Africa, Palestine? But his hands were trembling so they had to write down their names themselves in his notebook. Oh, yes, about the children. Right beside Goldsmith were young men who had saved Jewish children during the terrible orgy when the Germans killed thousands of Jewish children in Slobodka. One had carried out of the ghetto in a sack the little baby boy of a mutual friend. The Jewish doctors gave the children injections to keep them quiet and the young men took the children away and placed them with peasants to hide.

This story is just a fragment, a tiny line. But, wait. This writer, who was born in Chicago and lives in Montreal, is named for a grandmother who was born Goldsmith in Lithuania and died in Glasgow, Scotland, where she went to settle as a bride. Kovno and Kybartai are old, familiar words. The world contracts. Moishele, who was found at Dachau by the newspaper correspondent, Goldsmith, comes closer, closer to this writer and to others who feel connected with the boy or with what he typifies. There are scores of thousands like him and they are bound by unbreakable blood or psychological ties to those who are here reading these lines.

Because Jews in the free and sunny, plentiful countries feel a protective interest in these children who have been left all alone and with dark, pressing memories, the children are being moved constantly from scenes of horror by steps of advancement toward a better life. In Buchenwald there were hundreds of children between the ages of three and fifteen who had seen their parents gassed and cremated. They still had the innocence to say the Hebrew prayer which Jews recite on occasions for rejoicing: "Blessed art thou, O Lord, our God, King of the Universe, who hast preserved us alive, and allowed us to reach this season." Although this is the benediction for moving into a new house or on eating the first fruits of the season, these children had just a minimum of food in a ghastly and miserable environment. They have to be moved, not only away from such hell holes but out of Germany.

Dr. Joseph J. Schwartz, European director of the Joint Distribution Committee, says that the generosity of countries which are receiving these children for the time being is not the solution. They must have erased or dimmed for them the troubling pictures that becloud their thoughts and harry their dreams. They must have permanent homes and soon, not like the little ones who wandered for years and finally reached Palestine, across Poland, Russia, Persia, down the Gulf, up the Red Sea in a sojourn almost beyond belief, were the world not so wicked. Those who have relatives must be helped to join them. Jewish children who were hidden in Christian homes or institutions must be returned to Jewish life. Thousands must be placed in boarding schools or homes. Orphanages and youth hostels are being built and placed in use.

Through the help of people here liberation for Europe's Jewish children must acquire practical meaning and that is what the new year must secure. Children must face forward with a chance for a good and wholesome future. Inscribed in the book of life and hope, they must be able one day to say: "Some trust in chariots and some in horses; we will make mention of the name of the Lord, our God. They are bowed down and fallen; but we are risen and stand upright." f.f.s.

Canadian Jewry Hopes For A Just World Order In A New Era

By Samuel Bronfman, Belvedere Road, Montreal.
President of The Canadian Jewish Congress

It is with solemn thankfulness that Canadian Jewry, for the first time in more than half a decade of arduous struggle and sacrifice, now greets a New Year which leads on to the calmer, though no less challenging, paths of peace. Uppermost in its thoughts at this sacred season is the sense of overwhelming gratitude for the victory which has been vouchsafed to the arms and the cause of the United Nations. Now, indeed, is the faith which Canadian Jewry, together with all freedom-loving peoples, had affirmed throughout the last six tragic years, fully justified; within four months of each other, the two arch-conspirators against the liberty of mankind have been beaten into submission and surrender.

The military might of Japan is no more, and the Hitler tyranny which but a year ago still stood arrogant, has joined, together with its unspeakable creator, the limbo of history. It has been nullified, that threat of annihilation which was levelled against our people, as against all peoples who spurned the Fascist jungle-creed. Civilization may now once more resume the broad highway of its progress. The cherished ideals of humanity have been preserved. For these favours, we do, at this hour and in all our sacred assemblies, offer our thanks to God.

Nor is Canadian Jewry, in its gratitude for victory, at all unmindful at what cost the salvation of mankind was won. The blessed memory of the millions of martyrs who perished, victims of the oppressor's hatred, is still with us today; the honoured fame of the untold numbers of its best sons who made the supreme sacrifice so that the world be free, still shines, like a glory that is never dimmed. Though they be missing from the homes and company which cherished and loved them, their spirit remains, in the congregation of Israel a constant presence, a light forever to the brotherhood of man.

Surely we owe it to their memory that the world they died to make, a world of freedom and equality, should now move from promise to fulfilment. Peace, as has been said, has her victories no less renowned than war. Multitudes there are, indeed, to whose ordeal no end is put merely by the issuance of the cease-fire order. The liberation of Europe has brought in its wake a host of problems, the unhappy legacy of Nazi domination. Not the least of these problems is the tragic plight of European Jewry, broken and decimated, starved and scattered, a pitiable remnant in Israel whose rehabilitation constitutes a major challenge of our times. The responsibilities which are involved in this great epic task of reconstruction, Canadian Jewry, we know, stands ready to assume.

These responsibilities, it must be stated, do not, however, fall upon us alone. Clearly do the pronouncements of the leaders of the United Nations indicate that the establishment of a just world order in which no people shall be a Forgotten People, is the major objective of the new era which victory ushers in. Already there has been enunciated at San Francisco a World Charter one of whose basic clauses assures equality of status to all peoples, regardless of race or creed. It is our hope that in the very near future these doctrines of equality will be translated from literature into life, from document into deed.

The status of equality can not be implemented for Jewry, moreover, until in addition to the general provisions safeguarding the rights of minorities wherever they may dwell, the Jewish people be granted at long last its right to a Commonwealth in Palestine. Certainly Jewish suffering, certainly Jewish need, certainly the pledged word of the leaders of world civilization demand that an end be put to Jewish homelessness, that an age-old wrong be corrected, and that the Jewish people, which has contributed so much in the past to world culture, be permitted once more to resume its destiny upon

In the Parliament of Man, the Federation of the World.
There the common sense of most hold a fretful realm in awe,
And the kindly earth shall slumber, lapped in universal law."

Now the second part of Isaiah's utterance, "God will wipe away the tears from every face" speaks of our personal grief, the deep intimate sorrows. Yes, victory is here, but what price has been paid for the victory in precious lives! Who among us does not share the pain of those parents, of that young wife, and of those orphaned children who have been left stranded on the shores of Time! We are all bereaved. We are all mourners. Ernest Hemingway so well brings home this great truth in his book, 'For Whom The Bell Tolls". The source of that title is hidden away in the writings of a not too well-known English poet of the early seventeenth century. "No man is an island, entire of itself; every man is a piece of continent, a part of the main; if a clod be washed away by the sea, Europe is the less . . . each man's death diminishes me, for I am part of mankind; therefore send not to ask for whom the bell tolls; it tolls for thee." We sorrow for all who have suffered and died in this terrible world struggle.

Dedicating an American soldiers' cemetery on Iwo Jima, Chaplain Rabbi Gittlesohn said: "Somewhere in this plot of ground there may lie the man who could have discovered the cure for cancer. Under one of these Christian crosses or beneath a Jewish Star of David, there may rest now a man who was destined to be a great prophet, to find the way, perhaps, for all to live in plenty, with poverty and hardship for none. Now they lie here silently in this sacred soil." Precious is the memory of those who died in freedom's cause. We pledge their sacrifice shall not have been in vain. Out of this sorrow must come the birth of a new freedom for the sons of men throughout the world.

Has not God fulfilled these words of Isaiah which we speak on this New Year? From far-flung battlefields sons and daughters have this Rosh Hashonah returned. Some are still absent, perhaps they are amidst their journey homeward, perhaps they are still stationed in occupied enemy territory, performing duties to safeguard the victory and the peace. May God shield them and bring them safely back unto us. For the wounded we pray that God grant them healing. Thank God, we pray with men and women of every creed for the blessed reunion of dear ones long separated which we have come to witness this sacred New Year Day.

The third phase of the prophet Isaiah's vision deals directly with God's promise to Israel, His chosen servant. God will remove forever the rebuke of His people. It shall be taken away from off all the earth.

Too long has Israel been reviled and persecuted and insulted. Yes, not only has the fair name of Israel been propagandized against by the beastly Nazis and Fascists but even in democratic lands where equality is proclaimed, Israel has been taunted, and hate for Israel is preached. The poison peddlers, the disseminators of prejudice against the Jew have gone underground during the war but post-war days constitute fertile times for the hate mongers. What will the peace time years bring? Will there be a repetition of those nasty terrible hate movements against minorities which followed World War I? Will a depression come and with it expressions of scapegoatism?

We face with courage the future and are sustained by the safeguards already established by the leaders of the United Nations in the direction of world security. There stands foremost "The International Bill of Rights" written in the San Francisco Charter which guarantees protection of human rights for every individual. Unlike after the last war there will be no hurried Peace Conference. Rather before the final terms of peace are written the United Nations are holding many conferences, economic, monetary and educational to build slowly but surely the foundations of peace for all peoples of the world, great and small.

Nazi satanism has been destroyed! The tyrannical experiment which boosted efficiency and power is bankrupt! For some years to come a process of detoxication of the Hitler poison will have to be carried on all over the European continent. But the lesson has been brought home that "might does not make right." A million and a half Jews fought in the forces of the United Nations. The number of Jews slain in this world war is twelve times as great as the slain of the entire British Empire. The great hope for the future is the "triumph of the Jewish spirit", that spirit which calls upon men to live in justice and brotherhood. In this rebirth of freedom justice will be meted out to Israel. Palestine, Jewish Palestine, which has played such an important role in this struggle, is bound soon to be granted statehood and thus the two thousand years of tragic Jewish homelessness will be ended, and the oldest of earth's wrongs will at last have been righted.

What is hopeful, too, about the future in which the Jew is bound to find his rightful and just place is the possibility of a juster social and economic order which looms large on the horizon. The trend today is toward an emphasis upon human rights as supreme above property rights. This is best symbolized by the recent political landslide which has given England a government in control of the Labour Party.

Rosh Hashonah, according to Jewish tradition, marks the birthday of the world. With exalted hope, therefore, on the New Year 5706 we usher in the Post-War World. We praise God for the deliverance from danger, for the heroism which we have witnessed, for the resolution on the part of nations to build a just future, for the great resources at man's disposal now, human material and scientific with which to build a world democracy. In such a world Judaism, the mother-faith of Christianity and Mohammedanism, will be revered and the Jew will be much at home because the penitent world will be redeemed from evil and will choose to live at long last by the teaching of a Moses and an Isaiah. "On that day the Lord shall be One and His name One."

STORES THROUGHOUT CANADA

FOR CIVILIANS AS WELL AS VETERANS

By Florence Hutner, Executive Director,
Jewish Welfare Fund of Toronto

When the boys come marching home, there will be joy in many hearts and homes. Husbands will again be re-united with their families, some with children whom they have never seen; sons will return to parents, older and war-experienced; brothers will again step into the family unit. In Canada, it is estimated that approximately sixteen thousand Jewish men will be returning to take up civilian life, after absences of varying periods from one to five years.

Much has been written about the problem of the returning serviceman. Radio stories and magazine articles have outlined the right and wrong methods of greeting the veteran; what the veteran will expect of his family, friends and community. Special rehabilitation departments in the army, naval and air force services have been established for guidance and counsel to the individual discharged serviceman; and community-and private-sponsored veterans referral centres exist in many large centres to serve as a liaison between the veteran and his communal services, and to assist with claims for pensions, etcetera.

With veterans' needs so much to the fore in present-day thinking and planning, Jewish communities should look homeward. In a recent article in the Survey Midmonthly, a member of the Family Service Association, of Washington, D.C., after analyzing the difficulties presented in forty of her agency's case records involving veterans, pointed out that about half the problems were of pre-induction origin, while half were either precipitated or caused by military service. In another issue of the same magazine, Eda Houwink, of the American Red Cross, states that "the neuropsychiatric casualties from domestic camps are usually men whose difficulties, though diagnosed in service, actually existed before induction. When they leave the armed forces these men return to the home settings that helped to create their difficulties in the beginning."

These reports point to lacks in our civilian communal services; the war has not created new problems as much as it has pointed up and highlighted old problems which civilian communities had not met. The presence of psychoneurotics in the armed services points up the inadequacy of psychiatric services for civilians; home environments which create mentally disturbed men and women cry out for fuller welfare services for family and individual counselling for all members of the community. The fact that these services exist, and especially in the Jewish community where they have reached high standards, but have not been completely utilized by all in need of them, is due to their being labelled as "charity." It is this public conception of welfare services which makes some persons interested in veterans welfare to press for separate services for veterans because "charity" is not for them.

However, if our Welfare services were accepted by all members of our community for what they are actually—bureaus of highly trained persons able to assist people in finding their way through difficulties, available to rich and poor alike, then there would be little controversy about their use by veterans as well as civilians.

Most communities which are concerned about the provision of recreational centres for their returning veterans, will if they look closely and deeply into their resources, find that there are not adequate recreational facilities for civilian youths and adults. The chief aim of all programs of rehabilitation for the veteran is his complete re-integration into his family and his community. As some one has said, the non-professional soldier is a civilian who went to war. He is coming back to pick up the threads of every day existence, and if we are thinking of special services for him, it is because we are ashamed of those which we already have or because we have not planned adequately for the entire community.

Jewish communities with Y.M.-H.A.'s and Centres have much to offer the returning men. Within their walls, he can meet old friends; take up former interests and develop new ones; participate again in communal activity. But these centres must be fit for heroes; not so much in physical facilities, though these are important, but in program and spirit. It is after a little soul-searching re-

No Wailing Walls

An Excerpt From A Forthcoming Novel

By Leon Allen, In News Chronicle

Jacob peered at the alarm clock. It was almost seven. In a minute or two, it would ring. He leaned over and turned off the alarm, then quietly got out of bed. His wife stirred.

"Time, Jacob?" she said.

"Sh. Sleep . . . sleep." He tiptoed over to a chair and began dressing.

"I'll make breakfast," she said lifting her head.

"It is not necessary, Rebecca." She turned. "I'm getting up."

"I'm not a baby," he insisted. "I'll make my own breakfast. Sleep."

"Oooh Jacob" said Rebecca, smiling, "every morning for twenty-five years, it's the same story."

She got up and released the shade. A bright spring sunshine flooded the box-like room. Jacob, sitting in his underwear, blinked in the sudden light. He looked at his wife standing there with her thin, tired face and skinny body, and he felt an overwhelming sadness.

"The doctor said you should rest," he began. "you should sleep more."

"Who can lay in bed all morning?" she replied lightly. "What am I, a princess?"

She smoothed her hair back from her forehead, black hair with streaks of grey.

Jacob pretended to speak gruffly. "Then why did you throw money out on a doctor?"

"You're asking, Jacob? Who nudged me? Who had no abstinence until I went?"

"Sh." So I'm to blame. But at least, listen to the doctor."

"With all respect to Dr. Goldfarb, it's better I should keep busy."

She stood looking through the window across the tar roofs. Jacob knew she was thinking of Solly in the other end of the world. He sighed, almost to himself. She turned and walked briskly out of the room, pressing her arm gently as she passed.

He could hear her washing in the bathroom. He began putting on his trousers, watching himself in the mirror on the opposite wall. An old man already. Only forty-eight and an old man. Rebecca was forty-two, and she looked ten years older. Two old people who had become old overnight. Once you are young and then suddenly you look at yourself and you are an old man. Where had the twenty-five years gone? He drew his comb in the untidy shock of hair in the middle and the newspaper bundles. Packed away with the penny candies. Twenty-five years for a penny.

He tied his shoe-laces and with his suspenders hanging, walked through the narrow hall to the bathroom. Rebecca was already in the kitchen preparing breakfast. She was humming an old song. He remembered the words.

Shlof mein kind
Shlof keselder
Singen vel ich dir a lied
Az du mein kind
Vest elter vern
Vestu vain an unterscheid.

She stopped suddenly. He quietly shut the bathroom door and opened the medicine chest. There was Solly's first razor set in the corner. They bought it for him when he was in the sixth term high school. Everybody teased him about it. Two hairs on his chin and already, he wants to shave. Solly laughed and said don't worry, maybe someday I'll raise a beard.

A joke—

Jacob began lathering his face. No joke any more. Solly with a helmet and a beard. Solly on manoeuvers, standing near a truck, a big grin on his face. How do you like the whiskers? I haven't had a shave for a week. Little Solly with a helmet and a gun. I'm going to travel, he used to say. When I grow up I'm going to travel all over the world. Who would have dreamt. . . . You say something and years later, it becomes the thing you say, only different.

Changed.

Like Rebecca always joking, saying a good wife has a short life. Jacob's eyes blurred. He picked up the razor and began shaving quickly. Plenty of rest. No excitement, Dr. Goldfarb said. No worry. That's all you can do for a bad heart.

No worry.

A bitter anger rose in him. Was this a life? Was this their reward? After years of struggle and hoping, was this how it would all end? A blank wall. An empty future. A dream caught in a trap. His hand trembled until he had to stop.

A black curse on the world!

Soon the anger ebbed away, leaving him again feeling old and tired and helpless. He finished shaving and with blind fingers put the razor and brush back. He opened the door and walked slowly along the long dark hall to the kitchen.

Rebecca suddenly called out. "Jacob! Jacob! Come quick!"

He almost ran, worried at the urgency in her voice, thinking she had cut herself or spilt hot coffee.

"Rebecca," he answered, "what's the trouble!"

He hurried into the kitchen. She was listening to the radio, her hands tightly clasped and her eyes wide.

"Good news!" she cried.

"Why do you have to frighten me, Becky!" he scolded. "I thought something happened."

"They invaded France, Jacob! This morning!" Her black eyes were shining.

He took hold of the table. The announcer's voice reached out like a whip, and he stood there as if bracing himself, taking the sharp edge of each word.

Invasion . . . beachheads . . . fighting . . . casualties.

Then he sat down feeling sick. Oh God, he kept saying to himself. Oh God.

The announcer went on and on.

"Reports of operations so far show that our forces succeeded in initial landings. Fighting continues . . ."

Rebecca was listening intently as if hypnotized.

Let the war end, he prayed. Let the war end at once. Today. This minute. Let it end with no victory. No unconditional surrender. Let the war stop. Let peace come before . . .

He shut the dreadful thought from his mind. Rebecca's voice came to him as from a distance.

"Soon Paris, and then Berlin," "and Tokio. We'll show them."

He began eating, not tasting the food. All he wanted was Solly at home, alive. Let Hitler keep what he had. Let the rest of the world go to the devil. He watched Rebecca, her body tense, listening with an eagerness that made her face younger, not even knowing he was in the room. She seemed a stranger to him. Sometimes he could not understand her, as he had not understood his son.

Don't enlist, he had pleaded. Wait till you're drafted. When they want you, they'll send for you. Don't be a fool. Speak to Solly, he begged Rebecca. Tell him to wait. Tell him he owes it to us. We're his parents.

Rebecca had said nothing.

Jacob shook his head over and over. With her weak heart, she is the strong one. He sighed, feeling terribly alone, lost in a room that had suddenly grown as big as the whole earth.

Rebecca came over and pressed his hand. She sat down and smiled at him.

"Bells should be ringing all over the world," she said. "This is a day for rejoicing. There should be dancing in the streets."

He looked at her and dropped his eyes feeling ashamed.

THE HEBREW UNIVERSITY AFTER TWENTY YEARS

By H. Bergmann, Professor of Philosophy,
Hebrew University, Jerusalem

On the 1st of April, 1925, the Hebrew University was dedicated in Jerusalem. It was an exhilarating, colourful function to which came representatives of the learned circles of Europe, America and the Orient, to welcome the new-born child into the academic world. Lord Balfour, the author of the Balfour Declaration came in person, but not as a Minister of State or as a diplomat: he was there as the representative of the University of Edinburgh. It was an unforgettable moment for all present when Lord Balfour, his tall figure wrapped in the crimson robe of his University, stood up on the platform and spoke to representatives from the whole world. In the long academic procession walked representatives of 34 universities and 14 academies. Germany, the Germany of the Weimar Republic, was also represented—by the Universities of Goettingen and Frankfurt and die Wissenschaftliche Gesellschaft of Berlin. Members of the European Jewish students' corps carried their banners in the procession. The scene was a symphony of the most vivid colours and emblems on the site from which once upon a time the Romans had stormed Jerusalem.

Did anyone present guess that this splendid celebration was in fact a farewell to a world already doomed to decline? It was the flower of a splendid and beautiful humanity. But the year 1925 lay just midway between the year of the Wilsonian peace and the year when the National Socialists seized power in Germany. At the moment however, the wounds of war seemed to have been healed, and it appeared as if the world had once more been united,—a fraternally humanitarian world. Yet only a few years later, the virulent European disease broke out again.

In a certain sense the rapid growth of the University has been due to that crisis in Europe. On the day of its opening, it had only six professors in the academic procession; and of these six, three were guest professors. Where, people asked, would the teachers and the students come from? Yet only a few years later the University was opened. Jewish students from Poland, Germany, Austria, and Czechoslovakia were knocking insistently at its gates. Violent competition arose among the Jewish students of Europe for the right to enroll at the Jerusalem University, because in that right was inherent the right to settle in Palestine, which was synonymous with spiritual and physical salvation. After 1933 numerous world-famous Jewish scholars and scientists came from Central Europe. The rapid growth of the University between the years 1925 and 1945 is a striking illustration of the fact that man, though he "ventures into the sea of existence with sealed orders," blindly and unconsciously, yet does the right thing by instinct. In 1925 no one dreamed that the University was to perform a vital and lifesaving function within a few years.

Now, on the threshold of peace, the University faces the immense task of integrating itself into an entirely new world.

European Jewry, which gave the Hebrew University most of its students and almost all of its teachers, and which was the well-spring both of its material and its spiritual being, can hardly be said to exist any longer. The University will therefore have to seek new sources of energy to draw upon. A gigantic task rests upon it owing to the new groupings which the war has brought about within Jewry. The emigrants from Europe have created new communities in all parts of the world, communities which have as yet no teachers or spiritual leaders. European Jewry, which has been destroyed with fiendish deliberation and by fiendish methods, was the fountain-head of vast spiritual and intellectual forces.

In European Jewry the long tradition of past centuries had a vigorous life; hundreds of distinguished rabbis and scholars were active there; and it was there that great social movements like Zionism and the Jewish Labour movement had their rise in modern time; there a rich material, scientific and social life pulsated strongly. How will world Jewry recover from the blow that has destroyed its vital artery? How will it prevent the spiritual decline that threatens it after this terrible blood-letting? Where will it find its spiritual leaders for coming generations?

Under stress of historic circumstances the Hebrew University must shoulder a task for which it is as yet inadequately equipped. The only Hebrew University in the world cannot and must not be content with giving its students nothing more than a good professional training. It must not overlook its specifically Jewish function; it could not, even if it would refrain from sowing that spirit which the French poet Peguy has called the mystery of Judaism. But the great task of achieving a synthesis of religious spirituality and European learning has so far not been properly envisaged, let alone undertaken. And now the Hebrew University, which for twenty years has received energies and values, must assume the difficult duty of giving: it must send out teachers and spiritual leaders into a ruined, devitalised world that has been deprived of the central sources of its energies. Not without profound anxiety can anyone familiar with the situation think of the over-whelming spiritual role that will devolve upon the young University in the near future.

In recent years the Hebrew University has stood—if I may venture to so describe it—under the special protection of Providence. So far it has escaped almost unscathed from the worldwide tempest; indeed, it has grown and developed in the midst of the storm. May the coming years bring it the energy it will need for the performance of its gigantic tasks.

In the period which now comes to a close, Jewry has survived a turning point in its history. But not unscathed have we survived; a quarter of our total population has been destroyed; and of many of the survivors it can be said only that they breathe. To bind up their wounds, to rebuild the broken fragments of their lives, to set them again, erect and with human dignity, upon the path of self-fulfilment, is the task to which we must consecrate our efforts and our will. To those who for so long have known neither we must bring a decent life and an honourable status. It is a task which when crowned with success must inevitably assure both to its participants and its beneficiaries the Happy New Year for which all do earnestly pray.

"Nations Must Foster The Will To Peace"

An Excerpt From "Science For Life Or Death"

By Brigadier-General David Sarnoff,
U. S. Army
President, Radio Corporation of America

Further research into the mysteries of atomic energy must be continued if its challenging possibilities are to be realized fully. That such research will achieve practical results is not only a possibility but an ever-increasing probability. Nations have learned in the present war that mass attacks on scientific problems yield results as do mass attacks on military or production problems.

In the field of military applications, atomic energy promises results that challenge the imagination. The range of a flying missile propelled by such energy could encircle the world. A nation could, without notice, launch a deadly cloud of these missiles accurately directed at an opposing nation. Such atomically propelled bombs could travel thousands of miles an hour at heights hundreds of miles above the earth. The warheads of such projectiles would need to contain only a few pounds of the material to be decomposed into energy by a mechanism capable of detonating the nuclei of the atoms.

When a bomb of this sort landed in a city within a moderate distance of a selected target, it might well convert a large region surrounding into gas and debris. In view of its range of destruction, accuracy of aim no longer is a major factor. A scattered pattern of such bombs not only would destroy all life but would convert the city into a bed of rock, ashes and dust.

It must not be overlooked, however, that science never has been outwitted in finding a weapon of defense for every new weapon of offense. The flying bomb is not likely to be an exception: it will not go unchallenged. It is not difficult to envisage accurately guided "anti-missiles" that will take off against the approaching missile and, under scientific control, locate and destroy them before they have a chance to strike. But here we face new forces of destruction, the prevention of which must be measured in minutes or in seconds instead of months or years as in the past. This only emphasizes the great need for constant research to develop defensive as well as offensive weapons for mutual use.

A powerful nation today finds relatively secure as compared with one of the smaller nations. But that security may be short illusion in the future. No nation will be invulnerable to attack. No Goliath will be safe. Indeed, a small aggressor nation might have ample resources to destroy a great nation. Scientists of a small country may conceivably be the first to discover answers to unsolved scientific problems of the present. The possession of such a secret weapon by a small nation would make it more powerful and more dangerous than its largest opponent who did not have it for instant use.

Man has entered the rocket era; the rocket, once a toy and now a missile of science, has brought him face to face with a new destiny. Peace or war—life or death? A radio-controlled rocket carrying mail, food, freight or passengers through space at terrific speeds, or rockets loaded with the power of destruction—which is it to be?

What will man do with these outstanding facilities that science is creating? Will he use them for beneficient purposes? Will he use them to make the world a better and happier place, and to provide abundance everywhere so that those who now lack the basic requirements for comfortable living may secure them? Or will man prepare to use these agencies for aggression and destruction? No one knows. Yet no more important question faces the world.

Since man first roamed the earth Nature has challenged him to compete with her in supplying the basic necessities of life. Across the centuries he has met the challenge to only a small degree. When through science man creates an ever-increasing abundance of food, clothing and shelter he will have gained new triumphs over famine, poverty and disease. He will reduce the causes of war and diminish the areas of conflict. Prosperous nations, as General Eisenhower has observed, are not war hungry, but a hungry nation will seek war in desperation.

Therefore, as I see it, our great hope for world peace can best be advanced by achieving freedom from want, through man's ingenuity in atomic energy, electronics, chemistry, physics and the other sciences. All around us Nature inspires and offers the perfect model for science to emulate and duplicate, whether it be an artificial potato or a kernel of wheat, oil or cotton.

Already by ingeniously producing artificial fibres man no longer is dependent upon the silk worm or the rubber tree; also he has plastics for wood, and vitamins

Christianity's Debt To Judaism

Why Not Pay It By Fighting Anti-Semitism

By The Reverend John Haynes Holmes

I have two very definite propositions in mind. One is the proposition that Christianity owes a heavy debt to Judaism. The other is the proposition that Christianity ought to be willing to recognise and pay this debt, as any honorable debtor recognises and pays his obligation.

When I speak of Christianity, let me say, I am not speaking of theological doctrines or ecclesiastical institutions — very little of what is contained in the actual history of the church. Rather am I speaking in terms of that pure religion and undefiled which sprang from the heart of Jesus, was propagated far and wide by his disciples and apostles, was recorded in the pages of the New Testament, and remains to this day the greatest single spiritual influence in human history. This religion, it should be known, is in reality Jewish in origin and content. It is only an accident that it did not remain in the end what it was in the beginning — a part and parcel of the Jewish world. Now that it is one of the separate religions of mankind, its parentage should be confessed, and its heritage duly honored.

Let me begin what I have to say with Jesus, who is the center and soul of Christian faith. There are three things to be made plain about this man.

In the first place, I would remind you that Jesus' parents were Jews. Whether his father, Joseph, was of "the stem of Jesse", and thus of the royal house of David, as the Bible states, is altogether unknown and quite improbable. The genealogies to this effect in the New Testament are valueless. As a matter of fact, we know very little about Joseph — only that he lived in Nazareth in Galilee, that he was a carpenter by trade, and that he died, in all probability, before Jesus came to manhood. In much the same way, we know little about Mary, the mother of Jesus. She is a shadowy figure who emerges into the light only in the last few hours in the career of her eldest born. But amid all this obscurity, there remains the indubitable truth that these two persons, who are so venerated by the Christian church, were both of them Jews.

The second fact is of course that Jesus, as the eldest child of these parents, was thus himself a Jew. Two attempts have been made to break down and destroy this simple fact. The first is theological, and is to be found in the dogma of the Virgin Birth, which represents Jesus as born not of Joseph and Mary, but of a divine conception of God upon Mary. But this leads to the fascinating and impressive conclusion, seldom mentioned in doctrinal discussion, that out of all the tribes of earth, God chose a Jewish maiden for the incarnation of his dearly beloved and only begotten son. The second attempt to dispel the fact of Jesus' Jewish origin is purely pagan. It is to be found in the assertion of the early opponents of Christianity in the Graeco-Roman world that Jesus was born out of wedlock from a Jewish girl who had had contact with a Roman soldier. This has been revived today, in one form or another, by anti-Semitic Nazi propagandists. But this suggestion leaves Jesus at least half-Jewish, and thus quite as much outside the pale of the Nazis as though he were a full-blooded Semite. Suffice it to say that there is as little in this story as in the dogma of the Virgin Birth. There exists not a scrap of evidence to substantiate it outside of sheer anti-Semitic prejudice. If we know anything about Jesus at all, it is that he was a child of Jewish parents, born in a Jewish home as the firstborn of a large family, and thus himself a Jew.

The third thing to be said about the Jewishness of Jesus is that he was reared and trained in the Jewish faith. His parents were pious Jews; they went up each year to Jerusalem to keep the feast of the Passover! They taught Jesus, by precept and example, to attend the synagogue, where he became acquainted with the Bible of his race. In his early manhood, it was his custom to go to the synagogue on the Sabbath day, which is more than a good many Jews do today, and he began his public ministry, so the record tells us, by standing up in the synagogue in Nazareth and reading from the prophet Isaiah. In spirit as well as in blood, this Nazarene was a son of Israel.

It is from these three points of view—his parents, his birth, and his religious training — that we must agree that Jesus was a Jew. It is to the Jews that the Chris-

Five Years Of Jewish War Effort Show Distinguished Service Everywhere

By Israel Cohen, of London, England

The contribution of the Jewish people to the titanic struggle of the United Nations for the overthrow of the forces of Nazism are so manifold that it is quite impossible to give an adequate account of them within the limits of an article. Even a book of a few hundred pages would not exhaust the record of their services in the fighting forces and in the scientific and economic fields, and it is to be hoped that such a comprehensive record will be written when the war is over. All that can be attempted here is a brief survey of some of the more outstanding services rendered by Jews on the land, in the air and on the seas, in the various theatres of five and a half years of war.

From the very beginning Jews of the United Nations rallied to the call of their respective countries with the utmost enthusiasm and readiness for sacrifice, for they realized only too well that upon the issue of this war depends the future of civilization, which includes their own future too. So many thousands have received military awards and decorations that it is impossible to mention even an appreciable fraction. The heroes whose names are given here may be regarded as typical of a host of others.

The total numerical strength of the Jews in the fighting forces of all the United Nations cannot be stated definitely, because official figures in regard to some countries are not yet available and, perhaps, will never be. It is, however, possible to arrive at an estimate, which I venture to think cannot be far from the truth. My estimate is that at least 1,300,000 Jews have been or are taking an active part in the present conflict, as shown by the following figures:

United States	500,000
Russia	400,000
Poland (approx.)	250,000
France	80,000
French Refugees	40,000
Great Britain	42,000
Palestine	22,000
Canada	16,000
South Africa	10,000
Greece	9,000
TOTAL	1,296,000

These countries although the most important, do not exhaust the list, for there are also National Legions, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Australia, New Zealand, India and the West Indies, whose together may be estimated to have provided at least 20,000 Jewish combatants. We, therefore, arrive at a grand total of 1,316,000.

It is only natural that the United States should furnish the largest contingent, for its Jewish population of 5,000,000 constitutes the largest Jewish community in the world. At least four American cities — New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, and Boston — have each enough Jews in the fighting services to form one or more full strength divisions; and there are four other cities — Detroit, Cleveland, Baltimore and Los Angeles — which have provided enough Jews to form almost a full division each.

Up to September, 1944, there were 2,500 American Jews who had received decorations for bravery in action, so that it is not unreasonable to assume that the number has by now reached 3,000. Three Jewish service men have received the Distinguished Service Cross, America's second highest award for gallantry and great sacrifice. Thirty American Jews have each won 10 awards or more, having between them a total of 345.

The most decorated Jewish fighter in the American armed forces is Lt.-Col. Robert S. Levine, of Ohio, who is only twenty-six. He has a record of 16 citations: The Silver Star, D.F.C., Air Medal with 10 Oak Leaf Clusters, a Presidential Unit Citation, 1 Croix de Guerre, and another decoration not specified. Pilot of a Spitfire and a Squadron Commander, he has flown 100 aerial missions and is officially credited with having shot down four German planes over North Africa and Italy.

Sgt. Schiller Cohen, of New York, tail gunner in a Flying Fortress, has won 13 decorations including the D.F.C.

The first American Jew to leap into fame was the air-ace, Sgt. Meyer Levin, of Brooklyn, who as a bombardier of Capt. Colin Kelly's aircraft, sank the Japanese battleship "Haruna" in the first American victory of the war. He was awarded the D.F.C. and Silver Star, and was killed in a crash near Port Moresby, early in 1943.

At Pearl Harbour, there were scores of Jewish heroes. Lieut.-Commander Solomon Isquith, Commander of the "Utah" was decorated with the Navy Cross for pressing his 50 per cent. of the crew, and young Enzign, Stanley Caplan, a commander of a destroyer, helped

CONCRETE

Peace promises a big upsurge in highway traffic as bus lines swing back into full operations and more and more trucks and pleasure cars take to the road. This presents a paving problem easily solved by the use of concrete which is proving its ability to stand up under the punishment of heavy wartime traffic. The use of concrete cuts upkeep to a minimum and makes budgets productive of more new mileage.

FACE THE FUTURE PHYSICALLY FIT

"A sound mind in a sound body" is the aim of the laws of Judaism. And Rosh Hashanah affords an excellent opportunity to make worthy resolutions for the New Year, to change this hope into a reality. Face the future with all the physical fitness you can attain.

Make sure that your diet gives you all the protective food elements necessary to physical fitness. You will reap a rich harvest of many whole-grain nutrients from a daily dish of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. This famous cereal is made of the vital outer layers of finest wheat where nature concentrates some of the most important protective food elements found in the whole, ripe wheat.

For example, a one-ounce dish of All-Bran provides you with more than one-third your daily minimum requirement of iron. And you sap your vitality, your very joy in life, if your daily diet fails to furnish you with enough of this mineral to maintain the "iron level" in your blood.

In addition, and important, Kellogg's All-Bran is guaranteed, on a double-your-money-back basis, to keep you regular naturally. Get some today. Your grocer has All-Bran in 2 convenient sizes.

The History of the Shoe

Louis XIII's great love of hunting makes the boot fashionable. The musketeer dominates the period. High heels and expanding tops are the prevailing style. Excess, however, soon sets in and the foot becomes all boot. A wag is said to have fastened an unsuspecting gentleman to the ground by driving a nail through the toe of his boot.

While we are delighted that the fame of WONDER BRA with the diagonal slash, is increasing day by day we regret that due to wartime conditions, production cannot keep pace with demand. However it is highly probable that there will be at least one or more stores in your vicinity who will have them on hand although you may have to shop around a bit to find them.

In the meantime we would beg your indulgence with the assurance that as soon as humanly possible and wartime restrictions permit your favorite dealer will again be able to meet your demands promptly.

YEAR OF REBUILDING

Now, at last, peace has come to our war-torn world. But it has not brought an end to our tasks. For now we must start to rebuild what has been broken down and restore what has been destroyed. This will take fortitude and effort and patience. And these contributions can be made best by those in vigorous health.

Milk — and plenty of it — is necessary to health. It provides minerals and vitamins which protect you and yours against infection, which build strong bones and teeth and give the energy which all will need if we are to take full advantage of the victory which has been won at so great a cost.

NATIONS MUST

condensed into tablets. He has produced and harnessed electricity, which as lightning defied him to put electrons to work. He created artificial gas and now the sun daily dares him to bottle its tremendous heat for use at will. With that revolutionary accomplishment it would not be necessary to dig nature's black diamond—coal. I am sure that raw materials of endless varieties from ores to paper, from clothing to food, will emerge from the test tube, and from out of the air itself.

No reputable prophet would say today that there is nothing more to invent or to discover in science. War has destroyed all such theories and fantasy.

Peace now depends upon the recognition by all nations of their individual responsibility to prevent war. They must foster the will to peace. But while the world structure of peace is being built and developed, research and scientific preparedness by the United States must go forward through all the agencies of Government and industry that have proved in the present war how to work together in the interests of our Nation.

The vital role science can play in peace or war for the future calls for careful consideration of its potential influences upon the territorial, economic, social and political problems that nations seek to solve. If there is to be world security, the voice of science should be heard in the halls where the architects of peace design our future.

"Today, science has brought all the different quarters of the globe so close together that it is impossible to isolate them one from another," said Franklin D. Roosevelt in an address he wrote the night before he died. "Today we are faced with the pre-eminent fact that, if civilization is to profit, we must cultivate the science of human relationships—the ability of all people, of all kinds to live together, to work together in the same world, at peace."

FOR CIVILIANS

garding what they have to offer veterans, that some communities now turn a critical eye towards their facilities and programs, and plan for something better. However, this planning is being done from the viewpoint of the needs of the entire community, children, youths and adults. Communities are not repeating their former mistakes of planning for just one section.

No problem of the veteran has received as much attention and newspaper discussion as the housing shortage. It is interesting to note that a summary of studies of twenty Jewish communities made last year, reports that housing shortage is a well-nigh universal phenomenon. The "housing situation is in part responsible for a shortage in boarding homes for children," states this report. Failure to provide decent accommodation for our urban population, doing little or nothing about slum clearance and the erection of low-cost housing in pre-war days has caught communities short during the war, and to a greater extent now that their men are coming home.

It is estimated that veterans and their families will constitute approximately one-third of the nation's population. Their welfare and future are inseparable from the future of the nation. Planning for them as a separate section of the community will foster segregation; but using the veteran and his family as a measuring stick with which to take the measure of our communities, will heighten our awareness of the slack and inadequacies which exist for civilians as well as veterans. They are providing a vital and challenging force in communal life.

The Kosher Salad and Cooking Oil

For many years chefs, in all parts of Canada, have shown a preference for MAZOLA — connoisseurs of delicious salad dressings or mayonnaise appreciate the fine quality of MAZOLA. MAZOLA, made from sun-ripened corn, mixes easily with other necessary ingredients and imparts a distinctive and delightful flavour to salad dressings or mayonnaise.

MAZOLA is unequalled for deep frying or sautéing and is most economical to use, as it can be used over and over again without carrying the odour or flavour of one food to another.

Order MAZOLA from your Grocer in 1 or 8 lb. sealed tins.

Insure Valuable Records Against Fire

Taylor Safes have survived unnumbered fires without loss. Many times they have been buried in fallen masonry and subjected to enormous weight as well as terrific heat. They have always come through with contents undamaged. Taylor Safes today include the improvements suggested by over three quarters of a century of experience.

Announcement

The officers of the Poaley Zedeck Congregation Synagogue at 7161 St. Urbain Street would like to inform all of their Jewish neighbours of Park Extension and Mile End that they have procured the services of an excellent Cantor for the New Year's Holidays.

We therefore ask all of our Jewish neighbours to patronize our modern spacious synagogue, and to make arrangements, at their convenience, for seats as soon as possible.

The first shliches will be read on Saturday Sept. 1st at one o'clock A.M.

Tickets will be sold at the above address at reasonable rates between the hours of 8.30 p.m. to 10 p.m., commencing Sept. 2nd.

We wish everyone a happy and prosperous New Year.

Says Palestine Mandate Reverts To Powers

The American League For A Free Palestine plans to send to England the latter part of September a delegation of six or seven persons, including members of Congress, to discuss with British groups the modified policy to be followed in Palestine with the expected abrogation of the White Paper.

Guy M. Gillette, former Democratic Senator from Iowa and former chairman of the Surplus Property Board, who since Aug. 1 has been president of the league, will be chairman of the delegation, he said at a press conference at the league offices, 25 West Forty-fifth Street, New York. The names of the delegates, who will be traveling as representative Americans of Jewish and non-Jewish faiths and not in any governmental capacity, have not yet been announced.

The main purpose of the delegation, Mr. Gillette said, is to do what it can "to establish a free and independent Palestine, where there exists rights of citizens regardless of race, religion and creed" which would include the Arabs as well as Jews. He made a distinction between this view and the one held by Zionists, who, he said, hope to establish in Palestine a homeland for Jews and no one else, which might exclude other citizens from the state."

Mr. Gillette repeatedly emphasized that his interest is humanitarian and prompted by "the sense of urgency in achieving a permanent and effective solution" to the problem. "I'm not a Jew by faith, blood or any other connection," he said. He also expressed the hope that Zionists as well as non-Zionists would back the program.

He read a prepared statement which said: "Now that a new government has come to power in Great Britain which is publicly and officially committed to the abrogation of the Chamberlain White Paper under which Palestine is administered, Britain's sin of having kept Palestine closed to the martyred Hebrews of Europe at a time of the greatest ordeal and need should be ended. Similarly, the new government must annul immediately the discriminatory laws against the Hebrews in Palestine that were the product of the Munich and Nuremberg era."

He went on to say that with the imminent dissolution of the League of Nations "Palestine will cease to be a mandate of the British and will revert back to the Allied and associated powers" according to international law. "It will thus become a concern of the United States until the trusteeship machinery of the United Nations is established," he said, estimating that the interim period before establishment of the system of trustees may be eight to ten months.

Mr. Gillette outlined seven specific steps that should be taken immediately, the first of which was: "The British government should proclaim the right of every Hebrew in Europe to apply to the nearest British Consulate and receive his first papers of Palestinian citizenship."

He also proposed that an Anglo-American-Russian commission be established with adequate powers to effect repatriation to Palestine; that Hebrews be freed from Axis concentration camps; that a Hebrew commission be recognized for the purpose of handling Hebrew affairs; that U. N. R. R. A. should extend its relief to Hebrews in the Balkans; that Hebrews be represented on the War Crimes Commission; and that the Reparations Commission in Moscow consider claims made by Hebrews and compensate them for their losses.

Donald Day and William Joyce (alias Lord Haw-Haw) who daily denounced the late President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill for being "in the pay of Jewish capitalist plutocracies" were themselves on the German payroll drawing large sums of money.

Deportees Re-Enter Palestine After Five Years

A journey half way around the world was ended and what Zionists regarded as a great wrong was partly remedied when the British liner Franconia, carrying 1,300 Jewish men, women and children, berthed at Haifa, Palestine, and landed her passengers on the soil from which they had been deported as illegal immigrants to the British Island of Mauritius almost five years ago. The British Government had permitted them to return to Palestine.

Many elderly people had to be supported down the gangplank because they were so overcome with emotion that they could hardly walk. Others, on landing, knelt in humility, kissing the paved quays. A large crowd was moved to tears by joyous reunions between parents and children, sisters and brothers and other relatives who had all but given up hope of seeing one another again.

The story of their odyssey goes back to the winter of 1940-41. An official statement by the Palestine Administration, dated November 28, 1940, said, that 1,771 Jewish passengers in two vessels intercepted off the coast of Palestine had sought to enter the country against its laws. It announced that they would be deported in these terms:

"His Majesty's Government are not lacking in sympathy for refugees from territories under German control. But they are responsible for the administration of Palestine and are bound to see to it that the laws of the country are not openly flouted. Moreover, they can only regard the revival of illegal Jewish immigration at this present juncture as likely to affect the local situation most adversely and to prove a serious menace to British interests in the Middle East."

These immigrants were on the French liner Patria, which was sunk in the Haifa harbor by an explosion causing at least 260 deaths. The survivors were subsequently permitted to remain but the original announcement had said that similar action would be taken against any further parties that might reach Palestine with a view to illegal entry. Another statement on December 5 declared that the "position remains unchanged as regards all other illegal immigrants and the intention remains to send them overseas as soon as the necessary shipping is available."

At about the same time, the old tramp steamer Atlantic, with a smaller schooner, had been caught while trying to land 1,584 Jewish fugitives from Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland in Palestine. They were detained for several weeks until the storm caused by the sinking of the Patria had subsided and then they were deported.

them owe this peerless leader and founder of their faith. I would go so far as to say that we cannot understand Jesus unless we acknowledge that his rightful place in history is that of the last and greatest of the Jewish prophets. It is to me as incredible that the Jews do not recognize this fact as it is discreditable that the Christians do not recognize it.

So much for Jesus! Next only to this august figure of the Nazarene stand three elements which are central in Christianity. For all these three elements the Christians are indebted to the Jews.

In the first place, there is the Bible, the sacred scriptures of the Christian church. This Bible consists of two parts—the Old Testament, so called, and the New. The Old Testament, which comprises some three-fourths of the Bible, belongs not to Christianity at all but to Judaism. The Old Testament, let it be said, is the Jewish Bible! I know of no more high-handed piece of impudence in all history than the action of the early Christians in taking over the Old Testament into their churches, and saying, This is ours! It is as though we Americans should possess ourselves of Shakespeare, and Milton, and Dryden, and Pope, and Keats and Shelley, and Tennyson and Browning, and solemnly declare that the writings of these men belonged to us and were the basic part of our native literature. Saying so, of course, does not make it so!

These poets are not Americans—and, by the same token, the Old Testament is not Christian. It is Jewish through and through; and whenever we use it we should remember that we are turning to Jewish sources for instruction and inspiration. That is the reason why I am careful in our services here to refer to the Old Testament, whenever I read lessons from its text, as "the Scriptures of the Jews". As for the New Testament, this is our own. This portion of the Bible is "the Scriptures of the Christians." But even so, it is only fair to recognize, it seems to me, that the New Testament is throughout a Jewish book. Every word of it, from the first chapter of Matthew to the last chapter of Revelation, was written by Jews.

and this is saturated with the Jewish spirit and ideals.

Next to the Bible comes the church—by which I mean not the hierarchy, which belongs to a later period of history, but the simple fact of the congregation of men and women meeting together on a Sunday morning for the worship of Almighty God. Where did this reality come from? Why, from the Jews—more specifically from that generation of Jews which suffered the tragic experience of the Exile.

In the ancient times, among all peoples, there was no church, or congregation, as we know it today. The centers of religious worship were temples, dedicated to the god or gods of the nation, where national festivals were held, where holy offices were performed by priestly agents of the state, and where the people came at periodical intervals to lay their offerings upon the sacred altars. This was as true in Palestine as it was in Egypt, Babylonia, Greece, and Rome. The great temple of the Jews was in Jerusalem, and there was worship offered to Jehovah. There were times, to be sure, when local worship was set up in what was called the "high places"; but this was uniformly discouraged, and all religious rites thus centered in the city of the king.

Then came the Exile, in 586 B. C. The kingdom of Judah was over-run, Jerusalem captured and destroyed, and the people carried away as slaves into the far realms of their conquerors. Here they remained for two generations, lost to their homeland and to all the high practises of their religion. How could they sing the Lord's songs in a strange land? How could they worship God without temple or altar? They must keep in touch with their deity, and plead for his pity and help — otherwise they were surely lost, and their children with them. But with the Temple so far away, how could they reach God, or perform the rites which he expected? The answer came out of the very necessities of the situation. Robbed of their temple as of their holy city, the exiles, settled in scattered towns and villages, came together on the Sabbath day, wherever they were, and remembered Zion and read from the sacred pages of the Law. These meetings, which in due course were organized, and later developed customs and practises and a sanctity of their own. They were called synagogues — or whatever is the Hebrew word for a "gathering together", or congregating, of men and women for the holy purpose of religion.

It was thus, in a time of dire extremity, that the Law of Israel was preserved, and the memory of Jehovah, the God of Israel, not forgotten. In due course the Jews returned to Palestine, and there set up the Temple once again upon

Mt. Zion. The central worship was thus restored, and the priests once again commissioned to guard the people's destiny. But the habit of the Exile was too strong and too precious to be abandoned. The people would not give up their local or congregational meetings in their villages, or even houses. The synagogue became as well recognized an institution of Judaism as the Temple itself, and held in time the first devotion of the people. Jesus knew the synagogue of Nazareth from his youth up, and in this synagogue began his ministry. When, following his death, his followers carried on his work, it was first in synagogues, and only later in churches of their own, that they proclaimed the Gospel. But these churches, when they came, were modeled precisely on Jewish example, and thus were the daughters of the synagogue. When Christians meet today on Sunday mornings to worship God and to consecrate their lives to his service, and to preserve the sacred traditions of the faith, they are doing not only what the early Christians did, but what the Jews have done since the sad days of the Exile. We have a church because the Jews first had a synagogue. The former is the direct descendant of the latter.

This brings us directly to the third of these essential elements of Christianity. In addition to the Bible and the church is Sunday as the sacred day of rest and worship — the one day in seven set scrupulously aside for purposes of physical recreation and spiritual regeneration. Where did this Christain Sunday come from? Why, obviously, from the Jewish Sabbath.

It is true that the Jewish Sabbath is the last day of the week —traditionally the day when God rested from his labors after the six days of creation. "And on the seventh day God ended his work which he had made, and he rested on the seventh day from all his work which he had made" (Genesis 2:2). The Christian Sunday, in contrast is the first day of the week so celebrated because it was on this first day that Jesus is supposed to have risen from the dead. "And when the Sabbath was past . . . very early in morning, the first day of the week, they came unto the sepulchre . . . and saw that the stone was rolled away" (Mark: 1-3). So the first day among Christians came to take the place of the seventh day among Jews. But this detail is unimportant. The central fact is that the Christian Sunday is the rebirth of the Jewish Sabbath — the Christian once again taking his religious practises from the Jew!

We are beginning now, perhaps, to understand how stupendous is the debt which Christians owe to Jews. Not only Jesus himself, but the Bible, the church, and Sunday all come from Jewish sources. But not yet have we gotten to the heart of the matter. What about the teachings of Christianity — those great truths of the moral and spiritual life which constitute the essence of the Gospel? The things which Jesus taught — were these original with him, or did they spring from the Judaism in which Jesus was born and reared?

This question reminds me of an experience in the early days of my ministry in this city. I was attending a meeting of the Liberal Ministers Club, of which certain Jewish rabbis were members along with Christian clergymen. I chanced to be sitting beside a very eminent rabbi of that day — the head of the great Temple Emanuel. In the course of our conversation together, I made some reference to what I called "the originality of Jesus." What was my surprise to hear this rabbi retort that there was no originality in Jesus — that the Nazarene was one of the most unoriginal men who ever lived. As a young and ardent preacher, I was greatly shocked by this remark. In later years, however, I came to feel that my friend, the rabbi, was on the whole correct. It is true that Jesus was original in what he said—or rather in the way he said it! Of all the religious teachers of the world, he ranks as incomparably the most poetic. The Sermon on the Mount and the various parables are unmatched for sheer power and beauty in either ancient or modern literature. Jesus was original also in his spiritual insights — in his discernments of truth in unusual circumstances, and in his application of this truth to the common way of life. He had a genius for spirituality which is unparalleled. But his supreme and unique contribution to Christianity, of course, was his personality. Within this man was a radiance of the inner life which made it easy for his contemporaries to join with the Roman centurion in the declaration "Verily, this man was the Son of God." But in the actual content of his teaching, Jesus was not original. The substance of his faith and vision was all derived from Israel. Let me see if I can make this plain!

A civic ceremony was conducted at the City Hall by Mayor La Guardia, in which a Catholic priest, a Protestant clergyman and a Jewish rabbi were the participants. In the course of his remarks, the Mayor referred to the Golden Rule and the Lord's Prayer, and said that if men would only live up to the precepts of these two teachings, there would be no trouble in the world. It would seem as though, in this reference, the mayor were flattering the Christians and leaving out the Jews. As a matter of fact, he could not have made a better selection, for the Golden Rule and the Lord's Prayer belong quite as much to the Jews as to the Christians themselves.

The Golden Rule, it must be said, belongs to neither Christians nor Jews in any exclusive sense of the word. It is a part of all religions. Thus, I have found it in the scriptures of no less than nine of the world's religions — Hinduism, Zoroastrianism, Buddhism, Confucianism, Mohammedanism, Grecian, Roman, Judaism, and Christianity. The Golden Rule, as it appears in the New Testament, is familiar — "All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them, for this is the law and the prophets." The Jewish Golden Rule is negative rather than positive in its formulation, but is identical in meaning. It reads — "Whatever ye do not wish your neighbor to do to you, do not do unto him. This is the whole law, the rest is exposition."

But the Lord's Prayer — this surely is original with Jesus! So it is in its formulation into one of the simplest and most beautiful compositions that can be found in the world's religious literature. But in its content it is derived from beginning to end from Jewish sources. There is not a line in the Prayer which cannot be duplicated in these sources. In substantiation of this sweeping assertion, let me cite the testimony of two scholars who have a right to speak, as I do not. The first is a famous German authority, Theodor Keim, whose biography of Jesus, written many years ago, still ranks as one of the greatest studies ever made of the life and teaching of the Nazarene. Referring to the Lord's Prayer, Keim writes, "Not only the address to God, together with the first two petitions, but pretty well all of it in detail, appears here and there in Jewish Talmudic prayers." The second witness is a great Jewish scholar, Joseph Klausner, of the Hebrew University in Jerusalem, whose Jesus of Nazareth is regarded as the ablest biography of Jesus ever written by a Jew. In this authoritative work, the author says of the Lord's Prayer that it is "a remarkable prayer, universal in its appeal, earnest, brief, and full of devotion. Every single clause in it, however, is to be found in Jewish prayers and sayings in the Talmud." So the Golden Rule and the Lord's Prayer alike belong to Jews as well as Christians.

Next only to these two documents, I would name the Beatitudes as the most precious sayings to be found in the Christian Scriptures. Here again we have a formulation of truth which is a supreme illustration of Jesus' poetic and spiritual genius. But the content of what is said is again almost wholly derivative. "Blessed are they that mourn for they shall be comforted" – if you would know where this comes from, turn to Isaiah 61:2. "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth"— turn to Psalm 37:11. "Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled" – turn to Isaiah 55:1. "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God"– turn to Psalm 24.4. Thus are the phrases and thoughts of this great passage all anticipated by the Jews.

If any statement of Jesus is commonly cited as the complete and perfect summary of his religion, it is the dual commandment. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God, with all thy heart, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself." Where does this come from? First of all from the New Testament story of the lawyer who tempted Jesus, saying, "What shall I do to inherit eternal life?" But originally from the Old Testament, in two famous passages. The first is from Deuteronomy 6:4—"Hear, O Israel, the Lord thy God is one Lord: and thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might." The second is from Leviticus 19:18—"Thou shall not take vengeance, nor bear any grudge . . . but thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

If anything is original with Jesus, it would seem to be his non-resistance, his injunction in the Sermon on the Mount to "resist not evil." This received its supreme expression in Jesus' commandment that we should love our enemies. This is very obviously a protest against and correction of the Jewish law of retaliation — "an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth." This law, without any question appears in the Old Testament. Jesus was mindful of it, and would get rid of it. But he was not the first to take this stand. Long since the Jewish prophets had laid hold upon the doctrine of love and forgiveness, even of enemies. But in one brief passage of the Old Testament we have an anticipation of the positive aspect of non-resistance which is breath-taking.

If I were asked to name the most beautiful expression of Jesus' teachings on this point, I would turn to St. Paul's great Epistle to the Romans, and read the closing verses of the twelfth chapter –"If thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink; for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire upon his head. Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good." If there is anything original in Christianity, this would certainly seem to be it. Yet turn to the twenty-fifth chapter of the book of Proverbs, the twenty-first verse, and what do you find? "If thine enemy be hungry, give him bread to eat; and if he be thirsty, give him water to drink; for thou wilt heap coals of fire upon his head." Even in his teaching of love, for enemies as well as friends, Jesus was only faithful to the noblest precepts of the Jews!

All this shows what Jesus was really doing in his ministry. Not preaching a new religion, but reviving the pure and undefiled religion of Israel! Not starting a movement of revolt against Judaism, but only a movement of reform inside of Judaism! Not forsaking the Jewish synagogue and starting the Christian church, but cleansing the Jewish synagogue even as he cleansed the Temple of the money-changers! Nothing would have surprised Jesus more than to have learned after his death that his work had led to a new religion largely hostile to his own. To this day he would not have understood the meaning of Christianity and Christian doctrine.

Jesus was a Jew, in the great tradition of the prophets. He saw a religion in his time, as Isaiah and Amos and Jeremiah had seen a religion in their time which had become overlaid and encrusted with a vast growth of theological and ecclesiastical literalism which was fatal to the pure essence of the faith. He found the people beset and betrayed by all kinds of rules and regulations, the minutiae of law and rite, which were killing out the simple practices of righteousness and truth. Worst of all, he beheld a priesthood which was feeding upon the corruption which they themselves were fostering in the worship of Israel. All this he sought to sweep away. "The letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life!"

The Nazarene wanted to find that spirit again. Therefore he [illegible] sheep, that great body of Jewish prophecy which was the real religion of Israel as contrasted with the sheer superstition of the priests and Pharisees. So everything that was precious in Judaism came to life again in Jesus. He was teaching what was truest and noblest in the tradition of his own people. He sought for nothing but the restoration of Israel to its true faith. What wonder therefore that he was not original, since he did not seek to be original! "Think not that I am come," he said, "to destroy the law or the prophets; I am come not to destroy but to fulfill. For verily I say unto you, Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled." Here was not a Christian speaking, but a Jew. All that was distinctively Christian came later, and was unknown of the Nazarene.

Such is the debt which Christianity owes to Judaism! Not Jesus merely, nor the Bible, the church and the Sunday, but the whole substance of Christian teaching! To take account of this debt is to come face to face with two facts, which I would emphasize in closing.

First, we find here one explanation at least, and a very important one, of why the Christians dislike and persecute the Jews. They hate them and would get rid of them because they are so heavily indebted to them. This is a simple law of psychology, illustrated by the experience of every day. Thus, did you ever hear of a tenant who loved his landlord? Have you ever encountered a borrower who is devoted to the money-lender who has given him money? How often do you see a tax-payer who folds in his affectionate embrace the tax-collector? The publicans in ancient Israel were hated for nothing except that it was their business to receive the taxes for the government. And now the burden has fallen upon the Jews—that they have given so much to the Christians that the latter feel embarrassed and at last outraged that they owe all this to Israel!

There are many reasons for anti-Semitism — for the tortures and massacres, the pogroms and exiles, which the Jews have suffered all these centuries from Christendom. The problem is complicated and difficult — the pattern hopelessly entangled. But one strand in the snarl may be unravelled, and that is the one which has to do with the Christian's debt to Judaism. Until that debt is paid, or at least acknowledged, there will be little peace.

The second thing which I would emphasize is this payment of the debt. Is it not time that payment began? And how shall it be done?

First, the debt must be acknowledged, somewhat as I have tried to acknowledge it this morning. Why should not Christians everywhere recognize Jesus as a Jew? Why should they not have the grace to refer to the Old Testament, when they use it, as the Jewish scriptures? Why should they not acclaim the kinship of the church with the synagogue, and of the Christian Sunday with the Jewish Sabbath? As for the Gospel, what would be lost and what not gained, if the Jewish sources of this teaching were at last made plain? All this is not very much, perhaps, in the serious business of paying a heavy debt, but it is at least something. A first step is taken in discharging an obligation when it is acknowledged that it exists.

Secondly, why may we not pay this debt to the Jews by fighting anti-Semitism? All around us rages this noisome and fatal plague. It works its havoc not merely in Germany and Europe, but right here in America. Half-hidden, half-confessed, whispered rather than shouted, taking shape not in hideous persecutions but in countless little irritations and injustices, but none the less fatal as a prejudice which poisons the soul, this curse is our curse, as it is Christianity's curse, and it should be ended for very shame. Here the church, in the name of Jesus, should take the lead in stamping out this pestilence that devours ourselves as well as our victims. To fight and destroy anti-Semitism—this would be large payment on the debt.

Lastly, as a means of paying Christianity's debt to Judaism, there is the opportunity now abundantly given us to succor the Jewish refugees who wander the world in misery. Christianity has already done much for these refugees. The Catholics and Protestants of Germany and the occupied countries have lifted up their voices in protest against the Nazi horrors, and on more than one occasion have identified themselves with those who suffered. In England and in this country have Christians given generously in relief, and offered shelter and sustenance to the homeless hordes of Israel. But all that we have done is little enough. More — more, is needed, till every Jew the world around has found home and country once again, his place in the great body of humanity. To succor the Jews in this their hour of greater distress than they have endured since Jerusalem fell to Titus, this is our plain duty. And it should be our welcome opportunity to discharge the debt which all too long has gone unpaid.

To bring Jews and Christians together, not by converting or merging one with the other; but by reconciling both in their common recognition of that spiritual kinship which makes them one — this is our holy task. To end the injustice and horror of the ages in finding and binding that "unity of the spirit which is the bond of peace!" Already Jews and Christians are one in all that is central to the inner essence of our faith. Why should we not similarly be one in all that is central to the outer relations of our lives? On both branches of the severed family there rests the obligation to shake off separatism and end isolation — but most heavily and immediately does this obligation rest upon Christians, who have the numbers, the power — and this debt which must be paid!

I keep thinking of that great scene in Lessing's drama, Nathan der Weise (Nathan the Wise), which touches upon this truth. Some of you may have seen this drama when it was produced in New York. If so, you will remember the scene to which I refer — that scene where the Christian Friar has just discovered some great deed of generosity and sacrifice which has been performed by the Jew, Nathan. In his enthusiasm and gratitude, and desiring to honor Nathan with the greatest praise that he knows how to speak, the Friar exclaims:

"Nathan, you are a Christian.
Yes, I swear
You are a Christian—better never lived."

To which the big-hearted and wise Nathan replies:

"Indeed! the very thing that makes me seem
Christian to you, makes you a Jew to me."

shoot down four Japanese planes and depth-bomb two Japanese submarines, for which he received commendation of the Secretary of the Navy.

Among those who distinguished themselves in the first months of the fighting in the Philippines were Lt. Henry B. Marks, who was killed while throwing grenades at an enemy tank on Bataan, and Rathoman David Goodman, who won the Silver Star for helping to torpedo a Japanese cruiser, and 1 Oak Leaf Cluster for helping to bring General MacArthur out of Corregidor. The last words describing the brave stand at Corregidor were wirelessed by a young Jew from Brooklyn, Sgt. Irving Strobing.

Much more impressive is the record of Russian Jewry, due doubtless to the fact that before the war the U.S.S.R. was the only country in the world in which the proportion of Jews in the Army (2.1 per cent.), among both officers and the rank and file, exceeded their percentage of the total population (1.8). Among the 172 nationalities that make up the Soviet Union, the Jews occupy the fifth place in respect of the number of military decorations received, their total amounting to nearly 60,000. They have earned their full share of Heroes of the Soviet Union and are well represented among recipients of the Order of Suvorov and other awards.

The Jews have provided the Red Army with close upon 150 Generals, many of whom have achieved outstanding fame. One of the most conspicuous in the recent fighting was Army-General Ivan Danilovich Chernlakovsky, Commander of the 3rd White Russian Front, who died on February 18th, at the age of 36, after being severely wounded in East Prussia. He was the son of a Ukrainian Jewish railway worker, and held a triple record. He was the youngest of Russia's Generals, he won the first decoration the Red Army gave in this war, and he led the First Russian forces on to German territory. Chernlakovsky was a tank expert, and the achievement for which he won the first Red Army decoration of the war was that he held a precarious position on the banks of Dvina for 5 days with his tanks dug in as pill-boxes under incessant bombing. He took part in the fighting at Voronezh, the ultimate key of the Russians' successful resistance at Stalingrad, captured the German stronghold of Korosten, and led the offensive which liberated Minsk and Vilna. The Soviet official statement described him as "one of the most gifted leaders of the Red Army". He received the highest awards of the Soviet Union, including the title of Hero of the Soviet Union (twice), the Order of the Red Banner, the Order of Kutuzov, and the Order of Suvorov (twice).

Of the many other Jewish Generals mention can here be made only of a few. General Jacob Kreiser, who was also awarded the title of Hero of the Soviet Union, and awarded the Order of Suvorov, distinguished himself retably in the fighting area near Smolensk and extricated his army from a Nazi trap. General Khmelnkevitch, who had been awarded the Gold Medal of Hero of the Soviet Union for his exploits in the Finnish war, was head of the Russian Air Force in 1941. General Lev Dovator was a brilliant leader of Cossack cavalry, who fought bravely in the Battle for Moscow and was killed by a mine explosion. General Mikhael Chernlavsky, who holds the Medal for 20 years' service in the Red Army, was formerly in command of Tank Units and recently was in charge of a whole front.

Lt. General Samuel Kirvoshein, who has a twenty-five years military record, was in command of a mechanized corps in the battles of Bielgorod and Orel, and received the greatest praise from the Soviet High Command for the success of his corps in destroying over 700 tanks, bringing down 29 aeroplanes, and killing over 11,000 soldiers and officers. Major-General Isaac Beskin and Major-General Naftoli Breido are distinguished as Artillery Commanders. Major-General Mikhail Rabinowich is in command of a tank corps. Major-General Moisei Kerkovsky ensured the victorious drive of the Soviet Infantry at Bobruisk, and General Matvei Weintraub routed the Germans on the banks of the Vistula and captured 42 tanks and 43,000 prisoners. Of the host of officers of lower rank, one of the bravest was Lt. Vladimir Weiser, who was in command of a tank with which he put out of action four German tanks and an armoured car before he was killed. He was made posthumously a Hero of the Soviet Union. Special interest attaches to Sgt. Solomon Ravnitsky, a tank gunner, who captured at Velikl Luki a big German tank bearing an inscription that it was the gift of the parents of Vom Rath, the young diplomatic official who was shot in Paris by the Jewish youth, Herschel Grynszpan.

Among the many brilliant exploits of the Soviet Air Force a goodly proportion were performed by Jews, of whom only a few can here be mentioned. Ekhvime Feinman was a young pilot who deliberately crashed his plane on an enemy aerodrome to prevent German fighters from taking off in pursuit of a Soviet squadron which had attacked the aerodrome. As a result of the explosion air-sheds and enemy planes were blown up, the air-field was littered with wreckage and the bodies of Germans, and the Russian formation got away safely. By his heroic death Feinman avenged the murder of his parents and the violation of his wife. The first Jew to receive the Order of Alexander Nevsky, the new decoration awarded for exceptional gallantry was a fighter pilot, M. Jasonovich, who destroyed enemy installations on the Stalingrad front and returned with important military information. Lt. Boris Levin, a Hero of the Soviet Union, killed hundreds of Germans, destroyed tons of enemy stores, over 100 lorries, 8 barges and 7 trains. Heinrich Hofman, a 21-year-old holder of eight Orders, including Hero of the Soviet Union, destroyed 4 German ammunition cars and two dug-outs, set fire to two German headquarter buildings, and blew up several German ammunition dumps at Yaltir. Lt. Simon Furovitz, aged twenty-one, made 128 flights in 17 months, and destroyed 30 enemy tanks and 30 guns, besides blowing up enemy stores, engines and trains. After receiving three previous decorations, he was made a Hero of the Soviet Union, and given the gold medal of the Order of Lenin. Major Kurikov, who is a Hero of the Soviet Union, was in command of 200 para-troops in the battle of Kuban, and Victor Khasin and Boris Rivkin are are fliers who fought valiantly in the Battle of Stalingrad.

In the Soviet Navy there is a Jewish Rear-Admiral, Pavel Tralnin, who brought a large number of Russian warships and over a hundred merchant vessels from the Gulf of Riga to Leningrad waters without a loss, was commander of the Ladoga flotilla and then of the Kertch Naval base on the Black Sea, and later took an active part in the defence of Stalingrad with the Volga flotilla, and also of Mariupol, Berdiansk and the Kertch peninsula. Commander Israel Fisanovitch is both a Hero of the Soviet Union and a hero of the submarine fleet, as his submarine "Malyutka", sank eight Nazi transports in the Baltic. He received the Order of the Navy Cross from President Roosevelt. Lt. Schwarzberg, on the cruiser "Kirov", played an important part in the defence of Leningrad.

In addition to the brave actions of the men, over a column could be written of the gallant deeds of Jewish women and girls, not simply as nurses in the field but as fighters. Many of them from Uzbekistan have proved fearless soldiers, machine-gunners, snipers and guerillas. Lt. Lily Litvak, who was killed at Orel, and Rose Lemberg, were heroines of the air; Raissa Tsirelbaum, an intrepid guerilla fighter, was dubbed "Manager of the Bryansk Forest", and Trippa Salatin was a heroine of Stalingrad, where she exposed herself to enemy fire four times to fetch cartridges for her male comrades.

Russian Jews have also played an important part in the scientific and technical fields. Isaac Moiseyevich Spitzman and Joseph Yakovlevitch Kotin have rendered valuable services in organizing the production of tanks, for which they received the title of Hero of Socialist Labour and were awarded the Order of the Gold Medal of the Hammer and Sickle. Kotin designed a new type of tank and has received a Stalin Prize. A similar award was given to Simon Lavochkin, who constructed a new plane, the LAV 7. Another brilliant engineer is B. Spitalny, who invented the automatic aeroplane cannon.

The Jews of Poland displayed the utmost self-sacrifice during their country's brief struggle against the invader, and many have continued to fight with the Polish forces in different areas. Only five weeks after the beginning of the war, on October 9th 1939, the Polish General Staff announced that 30,000 Jews had fallen in defence of the country and 61,000 had been taken prisoner. Marshal Smigly Ridz issued a special order praising the heroism of the Jewish soldiers. The Polish Army that was organised in France in the winter of 1939-40 contained a proportion of Jews that ultimately amounted to 10 per cent. There were 2,000 stationed on the Maginot line and several were awarded decorations for bravery. Two Jewish soldiers received the Order "Virtuti Militari," the highest military award, equivalent to the V.C. One Jew was decorated with the "Krzyz Walecznych" (next in grade to the "Virtuti Militari"), with two bars, and seven others were decorated with the "Krzyz Walecznych", first class. Among the Polish Jews who fought at Narvik, one was posthumously awarded the "Virtuti Militari." Many others took part in the defence of Tobruk, and some were awarded medals for bravery on the battle field by General Sikorski. Large numbers of Polish Jews, including many officers, joined the Polish Army in Russia under the command of General Anders, who said they constituted not less than 15 per cent. of his troops. The Polish Army organised in Great Britain contained over 1,000 Jews. 2/Lt. Feiwel Rohatyn, of a Tank Regiment, was awarded the Polish Cross of Honour for conspicuous gallantry in Holland in face of the enemy.

The Jews of Great Britain in the Services are known to number over 62,000, of whom about 14,000 are in the Air Force. As the total Jewish population of the country (exclusive of refugees) is estimated at 350,000, those in the defence forces form over 17 per cent., a higher proportion than among the general population. Two Jewish families have seven each in the fighting ranks, one has six and five have five sons each there are three Jewish Major Generals — R. H. Lurie, C.B., C.B.E., F. H. Wrisberg, C.B., and F. A. Ullman, K.A. There were formerly nine Jewish Brigadier-Generals, but the number was reduced to seven owing to the death in action of Brigadier-General F. H. Kisch, C.B., C.B.E., D.S.O., and Brigadier-General F. Morris, M.C.

The heroism shown by Jewish officers and men in the epic withdrawal from Dunkirk won far more than 40 either decorations or mentions in despatches, while the skill and courage of Lt. Raphael de Pass in piloting a small craft across the English Channel in the evacuation secured him the command of a vessel in the Royal Navy.

The highest rank held by a Jew in the Navy is probably that of Commodore Daniel de Pass. Decorations have been awarded to a number of Jewish naval officers, including the Distinguished Service Cross and D.S.O. to Commander R. F. Jessel, R.N., "for skill and enterprise in action against enemy submarines," the D.S.C. to Lt.-Commander M. M. Bright, R.N., for "outstanding zeal and never failing to set an example made many flights in South-East Asia. Another is Flight-Lt. Peter Isaacson, who took part in a perilous raid over Berlin and many other flights, and holds the D.F.M., the D.F.C., and the Air Force Cross.

New Zealand's best-known Jewish flier is Squadron-Leader Ronald J. Cohen, who was awarded the Air Force Cross.

There were many Jewish Generals in the French Army before the days of Dunkirk, all of whom still physically fit have been restored to their former rank. At the beginning of the war there were over 10,000 foreign Jewish volunteers in the French Army, including 15,000 refugees.

The contribution of the Jews of Palestine belongs to a special order, as the country is a mandated territory, where the population is exempt from conscription. There are 28,000 Palestinian Jewish volunteers (including 2,000 women in the A.T.S.), as against 9,000 Arabs, in various units of the British fighting services, although the Arab population is twice as large as the Jewish. The Jewish soldiers have done service on all fronts in the Near and Middle East. They have fought from Libya to Tunisia, in Abyssinia and Eritrea, in Greece, Syria, and Italy, and their valour has evoked praise from their various Commanding Officers, although they have received no credit for individual exploits, which are attributed to "Palestinians". Field-Marshal Wavell stated that "they performed fine work, pre-eminently at Sidi Barrani, Solum, Fort Capuzzo, Bardia and Tobruk." In the fighting on the Egyptian frontier in 1942, Palestinian Jewish units of the Royal Engineers and of the Transport Companies played an invaluable part in carrying troops to the forward battle areas, in the construction of fortified strong points at El Alamein, and in the laying of minefields. Magnificent work was done by hundreds of Jewish drivers, many of whom drove their own vehicles. One Jewish water-tank company succeeded in carrying 200,000 gallons of water to the front lines across the trackless wastes of the Western Desert, day and night, for months without pause.

The first Camouflage Company of the Eighth Army, consisting entirely of Palestinian Jews, was mentioned in despatches by Field-Marshal Montgomery and praised by Mr. Churchill in a review of the Army's victorious advance. Brigadier Frederick H. Kisch, C.B.E., D.S.O. Chief Engineer of the Eighth Army (a former Chairman of the Jewish Agency Executive in Jerusalem) was killed in the enemy-occupied Sousse in Tunisia in April 1943 in Eritrea, Palestinian Jews distinguished themselves in the battle for Keren, and in Abyssinia about 200, operating in "private armies", reconnoitred enemy fortifications and brought back valuable information. General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, who was in command of the expedition to Syria, stated he much "appreciated the assistance rendered by Jews in this campaign."

After prolonged delay, the British Government agreed in September, 1944, to the formation of a Jewish Brigade Group, which consists mainly of Palestinian Jews and of refugees in England and in Mauritius. This Brigade, under the command of Brigadier E. F. Benjamin, has now gone into action on the Italian front.

The Greek Army contained a relatively high percentage of Jews, including many officers. There were 7,000 Jewish soldiers from Salonika alone, who took part in some of the heaviest fighting on the Albanian front. The first Greek officer of field rank to be killed was Colonel Mordecai Frizi, who fell in 1941 "heroically leading his troops to victory" (to cite the official report). The Archbishop of Athens presided at the funeral of this Jewish warrior, and the Athens paper "Ethnos", commenting on his death, wrote "The Jews are taking their part in this fight with their whole soul and all their resources".

Moreover, thousands of Jews have fought and are continuing to fight against the Nazi enemy as guerillas or partisans, both in Eastern and Western Europe. They have performed many brave deeds in Russia and Poland, in Yugoslavia and Greece, and all over France. Large numbers of Jewish partisans were embodied in the forces of Marshal Tito, and the Maquis in France included several entirely Jewish units which have now been absorbed in the French Army. Despite the perils that they ran, they fought with undaunted courage and unflagging faith, ever confident of victory.

Eighteen letters from displaced persons in American-occupied Germany, seeking to re-establish communication with families and friends who once lived in Brooklyn, are now at the Brooklyn, N. Like sixty similar letters that the Brooklyn chapter has been able to deliver, the eighteen are on "inquiry forms provided by the International Red Cross. For the most part, they come from Polish Jews now in camps in Mühldorf and Czernitsch Parenkirchen.

In Hebrew, English, German, Polish and Polish, the brief notes tell of families broken up and all but wiped out during five and a half years of German brutality.

"I and daughter live. Of the rest and child I know nothing. I must come to you. Help us."

"I have been liberated from a German concentration camp and find myself in American care. Unfortunately, I am the only one of the entire family."

Mrs. Apelian said that all letters with addresses are mailed. If they are returned, Red Cross workers search the city directory and telephone book. If these fail, classified advertisements are placed in Jewish newspapers and the names are sent to the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, the American Friends Service Committee, the International Migration Service, the National Council of Jewish Women and the National Refugee Service.

Zionists Place Hope In Truman

Jews remaining in Germany are "very resentful of delays in rehabilitation" and an estimated 100,000 in the Allied occupation area "are ready at a day's notice to leave for Palestine," Rabbi Israel Goldstein, president of the Zionist organization of America, declared at the La Guardia Field on his return from England and France.

Rabbi Goldstein, one of a group that attended the World Zionist Conference in London, said that one-third of the pre-war Jewish population of France was missing and expressed the belief they were exterminated. He added that President Truman's announcement favoring a Jewish state in Palestine "represents the major hope of European Jewry."

The Zionist leader said that he expected the British White Paper restrictions would be lifted, permitting masses of Jewish people to go to Palestine. The Arabs, he added, would accept the policy "if it is declared with firmness."

In the group were Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, rabbi of the Temple of Cleveland, Ohio, and chairman of the Zionist Emergency Council; Judge Louis Leventhal of Philadelphia, Pa.; and Mendel Fisher and Meyer W. Weisgal of the Zionist organization.

The delegation arrived on the coast of two American Export Airlines Flying Arcs which landed [illegible] hours apart with nineteen and seventeen passengers respectively.
